FORBES CALLS ON ALL TO ASSIST IN RED CROSS WORK

Director of Veterans' Bureau Says Organization Very Helpful Mother in All Good Work.

ST. LOUIS — Charles R. Forbes, director of the United States Veterans' Bureau, is calling on all those interested in work for the ex-service men of this country to fall in line behind the American Red Cross in its sixth annual call, November 21 to 30, Colonel Forbes says in his appeal:

"We ex-service men think of the American Red Cross as an all-holy mother and the veteran's bureau sees in that mother an always cooperating friend. Whether it be a matter of calling the bureau's attention to an unwarded claim or an ill man needing hospitalization, or of tiding the sick veteran over the time which must elapse before government aid can be offered, the Red Cross is always on the job with expert and necessary goods."

"In the bureau's 'clean-up' campaign when effort was made to locate every ex-service man no matter how remote his habitation or how limited his powers of comprehension, the Red Cross workers brought to light hundreds of claims which might otherwise have lain hidden until too late for the individual to make legal application. Taking good advantage of what some one has aptly termed her 'strategic position' the Red Cross service worker has penetrated the alleys of the city and the wilderness of the mountain in her search for the man who did not know that the government stood ready to help him."

"The veterans' bureau problem is a big one and we need the Red Cross. Together, and with the help of all the other agencies and individuals eager to serve, we will surely give most practical expression of America's appreciation of the debt which the nation owes the man or woman who gave health and strength in his country's cause."

ENGLISH GIRLS TURN TO SIMPLE WEDDINGS

LONDON—Old fashioned weddings at church with lavished decorations, gaily decked brides and bridesmaids, bell ringing and elaborate ceremonies, are gradually giving way to more sombre and quicker weddings at registry offices.

Statistics show that twenty-five per cent of the total marriages in this country during the year have been performed at registry offices. In London alone, of 20,000 marriages, 16,000 were conducted by the registrar, and throughout the country the number of civil ceremonies has grown from 20,000 to 15,000 to three times that number.

INTEREST LACK IS HINDRANCE TO WORK OF NURSE

Public May Assist in Work By Bringing the Nurse Into Social and Church Life.

ST. LOUIS — Lack of interest on the part of the public is the greatest hindrance in the work of the public nurse according to Miss Clara I. Crowe, Red Cross Nursing supervisor for Oklahoma. "Public health is not a one man job. Co-operation of the community is necessary if we are to succeed," Miss Crowe told the Oklahoma public health conference at the Hickman hotel Wednesday.

She advised those in charge of public nursing to give as much of the work as possible to the people and use the nurse more as an instructor. She advised also to place the nurse into the public and social life of the community as much as possible.

"There are," she said, "in my opinion three essential reasons for the apparent lack of community interest. First, lack of knowledge of the program, the nurse and what she can and will do. Secondly, through jealousy on the part of the nurse and what she can and will do. Secondly, through jealousy on the part of the nurse to do a finished piece of work, she is inclined to want to do everything herself instead of instructing others. Third, the people in so many instances forget that the nurse is a wide-awake young woman who is interested in other things than her work and if she is not absorbed into the community social and church life, loses many splendid opportunities for contact with the people."
